“Religion is a powerful force in people’s lives. At Yale Divinity School, we train responsible, creative Christian leaders in an ecumenical environment to transform an increasingly secular world. Access Yale will significantly widen our reach.”

— Gregory E. Sterling, the Reverend Henry L. Slack Dean and the Lillian Claus Professor of New Testament

Yale Divinity School (YDS) is nearing its 200th anniversary in 2022 and we will mark the 500th anniversary of the Protestant Reformation and the Counter Reformation in 2017. The study and work at YDS is as relevant now as in any other time in our history. We will mark these monumental occasions by committing ourselves to revitalizing Christianity in the modern world. Stand with us. Your gift will have significance for generations to come. Producing great leadership takes great resources. Your faith and financial leadership are crucial components in our success. We invite you to join us in our efforts to revitalize Christianity. Your support will ensure that experiences at YDS are even more relevant tomorrow than today.

“Financial aid gives me the freedom to think about new ideas, listen to and engage with my classmates, be a member of this community, and to connect with God. Without financial support, I would not be able to explore the work that God is calling me to do.”

Miriam Samuelson ’15 M.Div. is studying to become a Lutheran minister. She is a graduate of St. Olaf College and is a Marquand Scholar. Each year, YDS names six Marquand Scholars, providing them with full tuition and a $5,000 stipend for living expenses in recognition of exceptional academic achievement and demonstrated leadership ability.

Concern over financial aid is the number one reason accepted applicants do not attend YDS. Many top candidates receive larger financial aid offers from other schools. Although 90% of students receive some form of financial assistance, many leave with significant debt to go into fields where salaries do not allow them financial freedom. The average debt is $55,000, hindering the type of ministry or service career they can choose.
