Become a Fellowship Donor to the Graduate School
With a Gift of $5,000 or More

Gifts to the Graduate School Alumni Fund help to sustain vital aspects of the school—from teaching to student life—but no area is more important than financial aid. Fellowship support plays a crucial role in the school’s efforts to remain competitive with other leading institutions, where financial aid has been increasing substantially. In recognition of leadership gifts of $5,000 or more, Yale offers donors the unique opportunity to name a one-year graduate student fellowship. If interested, you may elect to receive a report that highlights the recipient’s accomplishments. Donors will also be recognized in the NHA e-newsletter Leaders in Giving.

Ellen Chapin

Ellen is pursuing a master’s degree in global affairs with a concentration in counterterrorism. A 2017 recipient of the Harold W. Rosenthal Fellowship, she worked at the Combating Terrorism Center at West Point, where she investigated Boko Haram, al-Shabaab, and other terrorist organizations beyond the Islamic State’s caliphate. After earning her degree, Ellen will begin a one-year term as retired General Stanley McChrystal’s chief speechwriter in Washington, DC.

Daniel Montealegre

Hailing from Barranquilla, Colombia, Daniel Montealegre graduated from the University of California, Los Angeles, in 2013 with both a bachelor’s and a master’s degree in mathematics. Here at Yale, Daniel is a fifth-year Ph.D. student in the Department of Mathematics, with a research focus in theoretical mathematics. After completing his doctorate, he intends to pursue a career as a quantitative researcher or software developer.
